Musavi withdraws resignation

NICOSIA, Sept 7. (Agencies): Iranian Prime Minister Mir Hossein Musavi has withdrawn his resignation after direct intervention from the nation's spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeini to stop political infighting.

Iran's national news agency IRNA reported today that Musavi, who has served as prime minister since 1981, withdrew his resignation in a letter to Khomeini last night.

Khomeini earlier delivered a blunt rebuke to Musavi, telling him it was no time for bickering and he could not quit office.

Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister Mohammed Javad Larijani denied today there was a crisis in the Iranian government but acknowledged that internal strains could lead to a new lineup in

Confidence

Larijani, asked at a news conference in Paris about Prime Minister Mir Hossell Mus recent offer to resign, said the prime minister retained the government's confidence but his cabinet appointments had encountered opposition.

"He has the vote of confidence for himself but he has spotted some trouble in getting the vote of confidence for a good number of his ministers. Then he resigned "I ariteri end ned," Larijani said.
"I wouldn't call it a crisis because this is a democracy and the prime minister should get the vote of confidence for each one of the members of the cabinet as well as himself."

"It is not a crisis but maybe it is a change," said Larijani, adding that he believed a compromise would be found.

Uprising leaders urge solidarity with Arafat

Sept 7, (Agencies): Underground leaders of a nine-month old Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip have begun urging mass support for PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

A new communique to residents, the 25th from the unified leadership of the uprising," was the first that Palestinians could recall which identified Arafat, leader of the PLO, by

The leaflet was issued in Jerusalem yesterday as troops conducted a 24-hour house-tohouse search through the Arab town of Kalkilya, a flashpoint of West Bank unrest. Soldiers arrested more than 190 Palestinian residents. A senior Army officer said a curfew would remain indefinitely.

The new communique urged solidarity with Arafat and his efforts to win support for the Palestinians from Europe, whose representatives he is due to address at the European Parliament in Strasbourg this

It praised UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar for a statement after meeting Arafat that spoke of the people of Palestine in the land of Palestine. Israeli officials rebuked Perez de Cuellar over the statement. The leaflet urged support for Khalaf said in an interview that an independent state" would "safeguard historical rights in Palestine through utilising international legitimacy."

He indicated that a decision on defining a Palestinian state could involve the PLO accepting UN Security Council Resolution 181, which envisages the creation of two states, one Arab and the other Jewish, in what was known as Palestine.

This raises a question whether we have to remove Israel or accept it," he said. "The answer necessitates a political decision.

Non-Aligned Movement conference opens

NICOSIA, Sept 7, (AP): The conference of foreign ministers of the Non-Aligned Movement elected Cypriot Foreign Minister George Iacovou as its chairman today, bolstering prospects Cyprus might next head the 101-member group.

The election of the chairman by consensus is currently deadlocked with two declared candidates, Nicaragua and Indonesia, vying for the honour. Kuwait has also been mentioned as a likely venue for the ninth summit. The country hosting the summit becomes the chairman of the movement.

Choosing the country to take over the chairmanship in 1989 for four years is one of the thorniest tasks of the conference, which will last until Saturday.

Iacovou's unanimous election by acclamation was the first business after the formal mauguration of the conference in the wake of two days of preparatory work by committees.

Candidacy Conference spokesman Nicos

Agathocleous, a senior Cypriot Foreign Office official, told his daily briefing that unofficial consultations over the election of a chairman were continuing among delegates. "But unfortunately there have been no developments," he added.

By tradition the chairmanship should go to a Latin American country. But the candidacy of Nicaragua, which is supported by the Latin group of members, is opposed by conservative mem-bers who consider Nicaragua too leftist and pro-Soviet. Conference sources, who did not wish to be named, said the lobbying for the post is expected to continue until the closing session of the conference on Satur-The names of Ecuador and

Zia's plane crashed due to 'mechanical problems'

NEW YORK, Sept 7, (UPI): US officials now believe that the plane crash that killed Pakistan's President Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq last month was caused by a mechanical problem, NBC news reported last night.

Without attribution, NBC reported the investigation into the Aug 17 crash is not over, but it learned that US officials now believe the crash was caused by a mechanical problem and not by a sabotage as initially suspected by Pakistani officials.

NBC said the US officials said that the plane exploded on impact, not in the air as would have happened in a bomb or missile blast. Zia, a general who played a pivotal role in backing anti-Soviet rebels in neighbouring Afghanistan, died in the crash in Pakistan along with 29 others, including US Ambassador Arnold Raphel.

ISP sponsor asserts his right

By Fathima Ahmed and Ashraf Shad

THE sponsor of the International School of Pakistan (ISP), Abdullah Rashid Al Hufeiti, has said that he is ready to meet Pakistan Embassy officials to sort out differences, provided the meeting is held outside the embassy premises.

Al Hufeiti also said that he will take charge of all financial and administrative matters of ISP when the school reopens on Saturday.

The Undersecretary for Private Education Yacoub Al Sharrah, meanwhile, said in a separate interview that regulations of private education require all sponsors to play an active role in financial and administrative matters of a private community school.

The ISP sponsor has been urged to become actively involved in the school's affairs.

Al Sharrah said the "minor problems" at the ISP have been worked out with its sponsor and the school will reopen, as scheduled, on Sept 10.

Asked if an enquiry committee will be formed to study the controversy at ISP, Al Sharrah said: ISP is facing minor difficulties and an enquiry committee is not required to study the issues, as we have already resolved them with the sponsor."

Al Hufeiti said he needs the help and co-operation of the Pakistan embassy on academic matters, but he will not tolerate their interference in administrative and financial matters. Al Sharrah said Al Hufeiu is now on the ISP's board of gover-

Reagan never mentioned nominee Michael Dukakis by name, but he made clear he thinks the Massachusetts gover-nor embodies the "liberal ideology of decline and retreat" and leads a party that has shown "remarkable passivity" and "unbelievable indecision" in defence matters while it controlled the White House.

The President attempted to paint Dukakis as being inexperienced in world and military affairs, while hoping to woo into Bush's corner those conservative Democrats who twice had voted for Reagan's own "peace through strength" stand.

Reagan charged the Democrats with promoting a "hit list" of cancellations and delays for projects such as the MX missile, the B-1 bomber, the Trident submarine missile and the Stealth bomber.

Dukakis, however, has said he supports the advanced D-5 Trident missile and continued development of the Stealth bomber, so-called because of its ability to escape radar detection.

Officials gathered in the centre applauded after an announcer pronounced the landing a success. Soviet media reports said.

Lyakhov now holds all three awards.

About 50 minutes before landing, the guidance system's computer automatically started an engine that braked the capsule, bringing it safely through the atmosphere, Tass said.

Assistance

Soviet news reports had heightened the suspense, saying life support systems aboard the capsule would last just two days, which would have put the 29year-old Afghan Air Force pilot and 47-year-old Soviet military officer in jeopardy tomorrow morning.

"If they cannot make the burn tonight (Wednesday), to push them back into the atmosphere, they will probably only live another 24 to 48 hours before the carbon dioxide building in the capsule will kill them," James Oberg. a US expert on the Soviet space programme, told the Associated Press.

United States officials said they had volunteered help but the Soviets declined, saying no assistance was needed.

'Stalin unattended for hours before his death'

MOSCOW, Sept 7, (AP): Dictator Josef Stalin went unattended by doctors for at least 14 hours after a fatal stroke in 1953 because his security chief refused to let anyone summon physicians, according to an Estonian newspaper. Sovietskaya Estonia said in an edition that arrived in Moscow yesterday that Stalin's bodyguards found him incapacitated on the floor of his country residence but Lavrenti Beria insisted Stalin was sleeping.

One diplomat said he had heard reports that the ware-houses of Western aid agencies were under attack, including operations run by West Ger-many, the United Nation's Food and Agriculture Organisation and the UN International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF).

These reports could not be confirmed. The phone at UNICEF was not answered. Evacuation

A US embassy official contacted by telephone said arrangements were being made to evacuate about 75 dependents of embassy staff "as a precautionary measure.

Call for probe into Aquino family's wealth

MANILA, Sept 7, (UPI): Vice-President Salvador Laurel. leader of a new opposition coalition, called today for a "Watergate-style" probe into how President Corazon Aquino's family gained control of a $6.5 million financial empire.

Authorities, meanwhile, released the embargoed text of a news conference, in which Aquino promised to consult Laurel and his new allies on a treaty determining of the future of strategic US military bases.

Laurel, who had been flirting with the right-wing opposition for a year, formally assumed the leadership last month of the Union for National Action, whose members include Aquino opponent, Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile, and former aides of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos.

Citing press reports and other sources. Laurel charged at a Rotara Club luncheon that Aquino's brother-in-law, Ricardo "Baby" Lopa, acted just six days after Aquino came to power in February 1986 to take over 39 companies formerly owned by a Marcos associate. Moving in shortly before a presidential commission was to have sequestered the companies, Lopa paid only $250,000 for the financial empire valued at $6.5 million, Luarel claimed.

Palme persuaded Rajiv to buy arms

LONDON, Sept 7, (AP): Olof Palme, the assassinated Swedish prime minister, lobbied the Indian government to purchase £800 million ($1.36 billion) worth of artillery during a peace conference in 1986, a television programme claimed.

The commercial independent television programme "First Tuesday" quoted a former Palme adviser as saying the Swedish leader asked Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi to buy 400 long-range howitzers from Bofors AB, Sweden's largest arms maker.

According to the State Department's annual report on global terrorism, four earlier shipments apparently slipped through with a similar quantity of weapons, including a ship-ment of semtex, a sophisticated explosive that is difficult to detect and has an explosive power 40 times that of the bombs

Shamir vows to crush uprising

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, Sept 7, (UPI): Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, kicking off the right-wing Likud party's election campaign, has said that Israel will not give up the West Bank and Gaza Strip and promised to use force to crush the Palestinian

He also vowed to block the creation of a Palestinian state. "The Likud will carry on massive settlements of Judea and Samaria (the West Bank) and Gaza until everyone can see that we are here to stay," Shamir told more than 3,000 cheering supporters at a standing-room only rally in Jerusalem's Binyanei

Shamir and Likud cabinet ministers who addressed the rally attacked the Labour Party for backing international Middle East peace conference and proposing to give up occupied territory in return for peace.

"We the Likud want peace with all our neighbours, but only through direct negotiations, Shamir said. Shamir said a Likud victory in

Organisation is under pressure to fill the vacuum left by Jordan's King Hussein when he dropped all claims to the West Bank in July. A possible PLO move would be the unilateral declaration of a Palestinian state in the occupied lands or the creation of a government in exile.

Shamir pledged that, if re-elec-ted, he would immediately "invite the leaders of Egypt and Jordan and Palestinians in Judea and Samaria and Gaza to negotiate directly for peace on the basis of the Camp David agreements" which call for limited Palestinian autonomy.

He said the talks would be conducted without preconditions. "Each side will be able to raise any issue as long as we don't stop talking until all possibilities for peace have been exhausted," he Shamir said the nine-monthold Palestinian uprising has not changed his mind about the need to negotiate autonomy.

Syria refuses to support Iraq's waterway claim

So far, the ISP's administrative decisions are taken by the present board of governors, whose term continues till the election of the new board, which will take place in September, according to a press release issued by the ISP's current chairman of the board, Zahid Said, who is also Pakistan's Ambassador to Kuwait.

The press release, issued earlier this week, also stated that the (school) "account is in the name of ISP and cheques were operated by two members of the finance committee of the board." It also claims that "the embassy is in no way involved with accounts except (when) the government of Pakistan makes a financial contribution to the school.

Al Sharrah expressed hopes for "more co-operation between all concerned parties and the sponsor, who is legally held responsible "in case of a dispute." "Any private school, be it

Arab, Pakistani, English or Indian, should allow the principal to be the best judge of the day-to-day requirements and academic matters." "We don't expect a sponsor to evaluate the academic standard of students at his school, but we expect him to know the outcome of results and be involved in a school's other aspects," Al Sharrah said.

Defining the role of the spon-sor further, Al Sharrah said: "Academic matters are the sole responsibility of the principal, and as such there must be rapport between a sponsor and a principal.`

Approved
Asked if the ISP's constitution, recently approved by that school's board, was valid, Al Sharrah said: "We don't interfere in the internal affairs of a school. As long as the management feels there is a need for rules for day-to-day needs - recruitment of teachers, academic matters such as examinations — and if such rules benefit students and don't contradict our regulations, we accept them," he said.

Al Hufeiti said he does not "approve of the present school constitution."

Asked to comment about the Pakistan embassy's alleged interference in the ISP's affairs, Al Sharrah said: "We do not tolerate interference if it harms the smooth running of a school. However, we would like to see various people involved in the school's management to cooperate with each other, be they the sponsor, principal or the

"Elections for parents" representation in the council will be held after the situation returns

Asked to comment on an agreement between the ISP sponsor and the previous Pakistani ambassador, Al Hufeiti said: "It was a letter of acknowledgement of my services rendered to the school, given by the previous ambassador of Pakistan." The ISP board of governors press release expresses fears that the school could be turned into "a profit-making organisation." Al Hufeiti claimed that he has not "taken any money from the school for the last eight years" and insisted that he has no intention of running the school for financial benefits.

Reassured

The sponsor reassured parents that he will not "allow my differences with the embassy to affect the reopening of the school.

"I don't want children to suffer because of our differences," he stressed.

Al Sharrah described the ISP as an institution which is serving the Pakistani community's children.

"Minor problems are no excuse to deprive the children of their right to education." he said.

"Difficulties arise at all private schools, which are suitably resolved by my department, keeping in mind the interests of students," he said.

He assured parents that "everything has been done to resolve the issues at ISP and there is nothing to worry about."

Al Sharrah said the school's reopening was postponed by a week (it was due to open on Sept 3) due to the delay in arrival of newly recruited teachers from

Islamic movement takes a hard line

By Paul Taylor

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, (Reuter): A growing Islamic resistance movement in the Israelioccupied territories has staked out a position more radical than the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) by rejecting any concession to Israel.

In a 40-page covenant, obtained by Reuters, the group which calls itself a wing of the Muslim Brotherhood says no one, including the PLO, has the right to give up any part of sacred Palestinian territory.

"Neither the PLO nor any other organisation has that right because Palestine is entrusted to Muslims for all generations until resurrection," it says.

The document was circulated as the PLO, spurred by a ninemonth uprising in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, debates whether to form a provisional government and seek talks with Israel on a partition of historic Palestine into Jewish and Arab states

Nationalism

Islamic movement, known by the Arabic acronyin Hamas, declares it is not hostile to the PLO but regards secular nationalism as a deviation.

"We share the same homeland, the same pain, the same fate and the same enemy ... when the PLO accepts Islam as the way of life, we will be its soldiers and the wood of its fire to burn the enemies," the convenant says.

"Until then — and we pray to God it will be soon - the position of the Islamic resistance movement's position towards the PLO is that of a father towards his sons, the brother to his brothers and the relative to his relatives," it says.

The covenant's rejection of Israel's existence may fuel the arguments of some left-wing Israelis who say that if their leaders do not talk to PLO leaders today, they will have to deal with Islamic militants tomorrow.

It could also help to make the PLO seem conciliatory and moderate compared to the Muslim fundamentalists.

Many, however, will regard the covenant as further evidence of deep-seated Palestinian hos-tility toward the Jews and their

The document suggests the Muslim movement is banking on a prolonged process in which Palestinians will turn to Islam out of disillusionment with the failure of secular nationalism to oust the Israelis.

In an interview last week, sen-ior Gaza Muslim leader Sheikh Ahmed Yassin said: "The PLO will give more and more concessions and under (Prime Minister Yitzhak) Shamir's government, Israel will give nothing and the Palestinians will gain nothing."

For decades, the Muslim Brotherhood concentrated on trying to transform Palestinian society along Islamic lines rather than fighting the Israelis.

Hamas was apparently born after the start of the current uprising as Islamic leaders realised they were losing support, particularly among the young, to more radical anti-occupation groups, such as Islamic Jihad.

Palestinians say that while Hamas is strong among Gaza's 650,000 Palestinians, it has only pockets of support among the 850,000 West Bank residents, most of whom follow the PLO.

It enforced its first general strike in the West Bank last month in defiance of the largely secular underground unified national leadership of the uprising, backed by the PLO. In some areas rival militants fought in the streets that day.

Some Palestinians are wary of Hamas because it has operated with relative impunity since the start of the uprising last December, while Israel has arrested thousands of secular nationalists and jailed them without trial.

There is a feeling that the Israelis have not touched the Islamic movement, maybe even quietly encouraging it, in the hope of splitting the intifada (uprising)." a Palestinian journalist said. "People will continue to view Hamas with suspicion as long as the Israelis treat it favourably.

Palestinian sources said there had been contacts between the unified leadership and Hamas in an attempt to avoid conflict, but efforts to co-ordinate activities had not succeeded so far.

Turkey in dilemma over Kurdish refugees

By John Owen-Davies

ANKARA, (Reuter): Turkey has taken a gamble in giving san-ctuary to Kurdish rebels and civilians fleeing an Army onslaught in northern Iraq, diplomats said on Tuesday. The decision could upset vital trade relations between Ankara and Baghdad and could also exacerbate difficulties with local Kurds in southern Turkey, they Turkish Foreign Mirister Mesut Yilmaz told reporters that acceptance of more than 69,000 Iraqi Kurds had "no negative effect on bilateral relations.

But it was clear from a visit to the rugged and remote border area that the potential existed for trouble.

Baghdad, which launched a major offensive against rebel Kurds in late July amid peace moves in its eight-year war with Iran, has branded some of the refugees terrorists and criminals.

Few of them seemed likely to accept an offer by Baghdad on Tuesday of a full amnesty if they returned to Iraq within 30 days.

Killed

Turkey has its own Kurdish problem in the southeast where more than 1,100 people have been killed since the Marxist Kurdish Workers Party (PKK) launched a violent campaign in 1984 for autonomy from Ankara.

"What will happen if the PKK continues attacks in Turkey? What if some of the refugees find their way back to Iraq to fight?"

asked one diplomat. Prime Minister Turgut Ozal said last week the decision to allow in the Iraqi Kurds was made on humanitarian grounds. "We will do all we can for the refugees," he said.

At stake for Turkey in any deterioration in ties with Iraq could be lucrative two-way trade, which was worth $2.1 billion last year. Iraq supplies 60 per cent of Turkey's oil imports.

There are many question marks," said another diplomat. There could be problems for the

"We are giving them (the Kurds) temporary refuge... they will be moved to camps away from the border and maybe spend the winter there." Interior Minister Mustafa Kalemli told Reuters.

Turks but you have to admire

At least 1,700 refugees have been moved from the border in family groups and fleets of trucks are waiting to take more. Officials said the flow of refugees crossing the border had now fallen sharply as Iraqi troops controlled the passes.

"Even though our borders are open, the Iraqi forces' presence makes it impossible to flee to Turkey now," Yilmaz told the Turkish Daily News.

Turkish commandos are watching over most of the refugees, including disarmed peshmerga (guerrillas), in makeshift transit camps just inside the border. Iran, which gave weapons and logistical support to peshmerga of the Iraqi-based Kurdish Democratic Party (KDP) during the Gulf war, has offered to take some of the refugees.

But informed sources said Iran's alliance with rebel leaders Masoud Barzani, head of the KDP, and Jalal Talabani was purely tactical and they would be of no help to Tehran in peace

Most peshmerga interviewed by Reuters near the border were reluctant to commit themselves to going to Iran and said they wanted to continue their fight the Iraqi government.

Problems

"We had planned to go back after bringing the civilians out but when we came to Turkey our guns were taken away," said Akram May, a senior pesh-

Turkey could have problems with Baghdad if pershmerga resettled in Iran later went back to fight in Iraq, possibly with weapons hidden in the northern traqi mountains.

A Turkish military doctor in the border region told Reuters that some refugees had chest

SIR: According to reports British Airways will introduce two Madras/London, flights per week with stopover in Kuwait from Nov 4. This is good news to the south Indian community in Kuwait who have been demanding Air India for direct flights for quite some time.

BA went ahead to catch a lucrative market of 400,000 both Indian and tourist traffic from US, UK and Kuwait, while Air India overlooked it. We Goans in Kuwait, estimated around 20,000, perhaps now will have to woo British Airways to re-route one of BA's two flights to Madras with a stopover at Goa, as more Goans travel home in winter. Also about 200,000 tourists visit Goa during the winter

Goans would be delighted to board BA flights in Kuwait on way home as they are not happy with AI schedules that keep them waiting for four hours in Bombay. We are not against our home carrier. All we are asking for is more convenient flights. For that matter, Goans would welcome any carrier, even KAC, should it decide to operate to Goa. KAC could extend the said route to Cochin

Unreliable Air India

SIR: Air India is becoming the most unreliable airline day by day. It never maintains its schedule. Suddenly flights are cancelled and even when reservations are confirmed and reconfirmed several times, passengers are told at the airport that seats are not available.

I had a bitter experience last month in India at Madras International Airport on flight Al433 from Madras to Bombay and then to Kuwait.

Our tickets were reconfirmed. When we went to the counter, the Air India staff said that they were extremely sorry to inform us that the flight was full and they will try to arrange seats for us on an Indian

Nearly 33 passengers could not be accommodated and then finally we had to rush to Indian Airlines at the domestic airport. I don't think such things happen in any other airlines. The bus and railway services

The controversy over the constitution was about the number of elected board members. Jordan's crown prince preaches perestroika

By John Rice

AMMAN, Jordan, (AP): The heir to Jordan's throne is a prince who preaches perestroika.

Crown Prince Hassan, 41year-old younger brother of King Hussein, is considered one of the Arab world's most visible intellectuals, a leading advocate in his own country of economic reform and political openness.

"There has been a continous cry on my part ... for a need to think seriously of Jordanian perestroika," Hassan said in an interview with the Associated Press, referring to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's plans to revitalise Soviet society.

For two decades, the Oxford-educated prince has guided development planning in this country of 2.8 million people. He has overseen remarkable economic growth in a land blessed by broad education but nearly barren of natural resources.

Slump

With an economic slump urged bureaucratic reforms and called for economic policies aimed at making the desert king-dom a centre for services and technology, a sort of Arab Sin-

Hassan sees economic success as a major element of identity for his 40-year-old country.

He said the task of rebuilding Jordan following the disastrous 1967 war with Israel, which flooded the country with refugees, was one of "restating Jordan's credibility on the basis of merit; that Jordan is a country that works." He also describes the war as his greatest trauma. Most of his published works have been devoted to the Palestine roblem, urging a moderate road to Arab-Israeli peace.

The prince himself is key to the survival of the last Hashemite monarchy. His family, descended from the Holy Prophet Mohammed (PBUH) once ruled Arabia, Syria and Iraq as well as Jordan. It led the Arabs to independence from Ottoman Turkey in a World War I alliance with Britain.

His patronage of Jordan's intellectual and business communities, as well as his periodic tours of Army installations, are partly designed to help broaden his base in a country so closely identified with its ruler that a common cliche says: "King Hussein is Jordan and Jordan is King Hussein.

Hassan was an Oxford underraduate in oriental studies when the king named him crown prince in 1965. He said his Oxford to "informatics," "economic complementarity" and "interdisciplinary links" during discussions ranging over Islamic history, global superpower strategy and regional demographics. He described himself as "a magpie reader" who samples a wide range of subjects rather than devouring single volumes.

But he said Gorbachev's book, "Perestroika," was the most fas-cinating thing he had read lately along with British philosopher Bertrand Russell's "In Praise of Idleness."

Short, stocky and athletic, the prince spends his spare time practicing Chinese martial arts, playing squash or polo, and with his family.

The prince has four children by his Pakistan-born wife, Princess Sarwat, although King Hussein has decreed that his own third son, Prince Aly, is in line for the throne after Hassan. Jordanian television often shows him addressing two or three seminars or conferences a day in Jordan, or attending international conferences on development or humanitarian affairs.

He helped found most of the country's main research centres on contemporary issues, and said he enjoys seminars where he can step out of his palace role.

View.

"Nobody's going to stand up to a person of authority and express their views as clearly as they should," he said. Hassan has repeatedly urged freer debate on domestic policy issues, occasionally bumping heads with government officials concerned about criticism.

HYDRO C

It's not a plant food – nor an additive. It's a soil treatment.

Hydro Grow 400 is a water absorbent polymer which will significantly reduce the watering requirement of plants & trees and will promote healthy growth.

Hydro Grow 400 granules absorb up to 400 times their own volume of water and when incorporated in the growing medium around the roots, ensure that a constant supply of water is available to the plant on demand.

Hydro Grow 400 improves the quality of soil and composts by increasing their potential water holding capacity without waterlogging. Ideal for indoor and outdoor plants.

After satisfactory product testing, bulk sales of Hydro Grow 400 have been made to: Abu Dhabi -15 tonnes, Oman -1/2 tonne, and Qatar - 1/2 tonne.

In addition to these purchases, governments are evaluating Hydro Grow 400 in field tests in Syria (Ministry of Agriculture), Jordan (Farming Authority), Qatar (Research Stations) and Oman (Landscaping and Forestry.)

Dear Junior Readers,

For the younger ones among you, the awful day has already passed, but, for the rest, the horror of crowling out of bed at the crack of dawn, climbing sleepily into the bus and sitting trapped in one room for what seems like forever is yet to come. Yes...the first day of term is Still, as I said a few weeks ago, look on the bright side. There will be no more long, boring days not knowing what to do, you will see old friends again and make some new ones too and, most important of all, you will start learning again.

So, make a resolution from the very first day to work hard and get as much as you can out of your school days.

Good luck to you all and I hope you have an interesting and successful term.

ONCE there was a rather nasty Giant who lived in the Tall Mountains. He used to come down from the mountains and stamp up and down outside the walls of the city nearby. ranting and roaring, swinging his great wooden club.

Of course this terrified the people of the city, and at the first signs of his coming they would flee indoors and crouch there trembling until he went away again. Before he went away the Giant would lean over the city wall and pick up great amounts of fruit and meat. Once the Mayor of the city got up an army from the men, to fight the Giant. But when they marched out to face him, the Giant just bent down, gave a great puff and blew them all back into the city. His laughter that time was so loud it cracked some of the windows of the houses. Well, the people of the city were very unhappy, but there seemed to be nothing they could do.

There happened to be living in the city at that time a boy called Carlo. Now Carlo and his parents were afraid of the Giant, and when he came they would hide under their beds. But when he had gone Carlo would cheer his mother and father up by playing music on his silver flute. Carlo loved music and loved playing his flute. Most of all he loved to go up onto the roof of the house and play his flute in the sun.

One sunny day Carlo was doing just that when he heard a sudden roar from the streets below. Looking down he could see people running up and down; then he saw the Giant himself leaning over the wall right above him. Terrified, Carlo tried to hide behind the chimney pots. But it was too late ... the Giant had seem him!

"Oho!!" a great roar made Carlo's ears tingle. Then a great finger came poking through the chimney pots. Then, quick as a flash. Carlo found himself plucked through the air. Pluff? He was dropped into the darkness of one of the Giant's pockets.

For some time Carlo was so frightened he just lay there in the darkness clutching his silver flute. Then he took courage and stood up. With a struggle he pushed his head through the flap.

The sight that met his eyes amazed him: the city and the fields lay far below, so small that he could cover them with his hands. The Giant was climbing the mountains to his cave! Terrified again, poor Carlo crouched back into the fright, expecting the Giant to snap him into his mouth and crunch him up there and then. But nothing like that happened.

Carlo looked up into the great face. It really wasn't to terrible, in fact it looked sad and unhappy.

"Can you talk to me?"

said the Giant suddenly. "Talk to you," said Carlo, full of surprise.

"Yes, I'm a very lonely fellow," the Giant said. "I never have a chance to talk to anybody. I just can't seem to make any friends.

At this Carlo jumped off the cup, filled with anger. "Friends!" he shouted up to the Giant. "How dare you talk about making friends. Why do you come down to the city then, roaring and frightening everybody?"

The Giant covered his face with his hands. "Please don't shout at me. I don't like it," he said. "I only do those awful things because all Giants do them. That's what we dowe frighten people!"

Splash! A huge teardrop hit the table, and Carlo had to jump back quickly to avoid getting soaked. The Giant was crying! Now Carlo started to feel sorry for him.

"All right, Giant," he said, "all right. I shouldn't have shouted at you, but you do terrify all the people in the city so!

But the Giant went on weeping and the table began to get rather wet.

'I must stop him crying."Carlo pulled his silver flute from his pocket and began to play it.

At once the Giant stopped and looked down, his e es and mouth wide open. "Why, that's wonderful music," he got up and began to dance around the cave, humming the tune. "Giant, you have lovely voice," shouted Carlo, who had a good ear for such things. The Giant came back to the table.

"Have I really?" he said, his great face beaming. "Can you teach me to

"Of course I can,". replied Carlo. And so Carlo stayed at the Giant's cave for several days, teaching him all the lovely songs that he knew. When the Giant next appeared at the city walls, everyone ran about in a terrible fright until someone noticed that he wasn't carrying on like he had before and that Carlo, the boy no one ever expected to see again, was standing on the flat of the Giant's hand.

"Listen, everyone," Carlo shouted! "The Giant won't hurt you. He just wants you to hear him Carlo began to play his flute and the Giant began to sing.

Slowly the streets filled with people listening with wonder to the Giant's beautiful voice. When he finished the whole city began clapping and cheer-it all to Carlo," he said. The Giant is very sorry for all the trouble he has caused. He promises to leave the city in peace if you. will let him come and sing and talk to you!" Carlo

The people cheered and shouted "Yes, Yes,"

How happy everyone was, the Mayor, the Grant Carlo and especially Carlo's parents to see their dear son safe and well. The city became very proud of its singing Giant, and Carlo became a famous man in the city.

The life of modern man calls for an ever increasing consumption of water. To take one example from industry: to build a single motorcar needs two and a half million litres of water. The situation is just as surprising with regard to food: the maize plant absorbs an average of 200 litres of water for every kilo of seed it produces; for a loaf of bread 3,000 litres of water are required. Moreover, the world

water reserves are continually decreasing: for instance, glaciers are tending have to purify sea water to retreat and glaciers are nature's reserves of fresh water. In contrast to the shortage of water and the increasing demand for it there is the enormous amount of water to be found in the oceans and seas.

There is, therefore, a pressing need to purify sea water. One actual example is Kuwait, where all the fresh water used is obtained by distillation of sea water.

Revamped OPEC production policy will help push prices up

GCC oil ministers to discuss quota discipline

THE six oil ministers of the Gulf Co-operation Council nations, four of whom represent key Arab nations in OPEC will meet on Oct 16 in Riyadh, the Kuwait News Agency reported yester-Officials at GCC headquarters in Riyadh confirmed that the ministers have a routine meeting coming up, but were reluctant to fix a date. Earlier reports had said the meeting would take place on Sept 17-18.

KUNA said production by the 13-nation Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries and restoring quota discipline would be key topics at the GCC talks in advance of an OPEC ministerial session scheduled for Nov 21 in Vienna.

The GCC group, along with other OPEC members, hope to settle the issue of production by Iraq and Iran now that their 8year-old war has ground to a balt.

Tehran has reportedly rejected proposals that Iran and Iraq be alloted equal production quotas in a bid to curb Iraq's unbrided output of around 2.8 million barrels a day.

Iraq has refused to accept a quota of 1.5 million barrels a day and demanded parity with Iran's 2.3 million-barrel quota.

Oil prices tumbled more than 50 cents a barrel to their lowest level in 22 months on Tuesday, reflecting high OPEC production and lack of progress in the ceasefire talks between Iran and Some analysts said prices could drop to $13.50 this week, and possibly to less than $10 a barrel before year-end, a level not seen since April 1986. October crude oil futures fell a steep 55 cents to close at $14.24 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the lowest price since Oct 30, 1986.

"Before year-end, we could see a repeat of 1986 when prices fell to 9.75 a barrel," said Nauman Barakat, analyst at Shearson Lehman Hutton.

Other analysts were more conservative, saying the fall would be unlikely to take prices below the $13.50 level.

Barakat said that some of the same elements that pushed prices down in 1986 were present now. "OPEC members want to increase production to get a larger share of the market and the major oil companies are not pushing the organisation to firm prices because refining profit margins are so good," he said. Prices on cash markets in New York and Houston, where actual barrels are traded, recorded similar moves.

Production

"There is too much OPEC production and no progress on peace talks between Iran and Iraq," said Peter Beutel of Elders Futures Inc. North Sea Brent, the international marker grade, fell 60 cents to a late quote of $13.50 for October loading.

The price fall puts OPEC even further from its goal of setting an $18 a barrel benchmark price.

OPEC nations have been producing above their quota levels for most of the year, but fresh evidence that they are keeping their spigots wide open came from the Paris-based International Energy Agency, which estimated OPEC's August output at 19 million barrels a day, up from 18.7 million in July. Demand for OPEC oil, however, is estimated to be only about 18.2 million barrels a day, according to industry analysts.

Jordan won't relent on moneychanger curbs

AMMAN, Sept 7, (Reuter): Jordan's Central Bank said today it would press ahead with curbs on moneychangers aimed at augmenting foreign exchange reserves, despite bitter criticism of the regulations. "We will not go back on our decision...moneychan regulations. We will not go mack on our decision...moneychangers have to abide by these rules as of the beginning of next month," Central Bank Governor Hussein Qasem told Renters. "We have given moneychangers enough time to adjust to the new regulations...we have our own ways to check their adherence and any violation on their part will be dealt with according to the law." The regulations were initialy due to take effect one month after they were announced on June 25. The moneychangers, who sent detailed objections to Prime Minister Zeid Al Rifa'i in June, say the measures will hit their business hard, promote a black market and reduce the flow of remittances from nearly 350,000 Jordanians working abroad. The regulations are aimed at curbing the outflow of foreign currency and bolstering the Jordanian dinar. They ban moneychangers from accepting deposits, extending loans, making transfers, issuing cheques abroad, opening accounts overseas and speculating in international equity, metals or commodity markets. Moneychangers may now have foreign currency accounts only at local banks. Unlike the banks, they may buy and sell unlimited quantities of banknotes and need not abide by Central Bank sell rates. They can ask banks at which they hold foreign currency accounts to issue cheques to nonresidents, but can only sell banknotes to Jordanian residents. An estimated 75 moneychanging companies operate in the country and some have been offering a virtual alternative banking system. Qasem said he had told central banks in world financial centres and Arab countries that any accounts held or opened by Jordan-ian moneychangers outside the country were prohibited under the rules. He rejected claims that the regulations would encourage a local black market. "Black markets are only created when there are no other outlets for people to make their money transfers. In this case we still have local banks," said Qasem.

In its latest semi-annual worldeconomic outlook, the fund revised its esemble for the growth of economic activity in the industrialised world this year by a full percentage point, although the IMF economists say there is still little evidence of overheating.

The fund's economists now anticipate a real, or inflationadjusted, growth rate of 3.8 per cent for 1988, compared with the 2.8 per cent increase projected in their April report.

The IMF's figures for 1988 and 1989 are substantially higher than the growth rates of 3 per cent and 2.5 per cent respectively projected by the Organisation for Economic Copperation and Development (OECD) in June.

Boosted by unexpectedly robust output and demand growth, real Gross National Product (GNP) in the United States is expected to set the pattern for the other industrialised countries with a 3.9 per cent increase in 1988 — the strongest rise since 1984 — following last year's 3.4 per cent growth.
In April, the IMF had projected real growth rates of 2.9 per cent in both 1987 and 1988 for the United States. The IMF's latest projection of a slowdown in US real GNP growth in 1989 to 2.7 per cent was unchanged from its April estimate.

Growth

The IMF economists said the recent pace of growth of the US economy "cannot be considered sustainable" since potential output growth is only expected to rise at an annual rate of 2.8 per cent through 1992.

The report warned that the recent surge of export demand has brought the US economy very close to the point at which an acceleration of inflation is a significant danger."

To reduce this risk, the IMF said, "it is essential that the growth of domestic demand in the US be curbed." The fund recommends that the best way would be to cut the budget deficit

Japan's real GNP is expected to expand by 5.8 per cent in 1988, slowing to 4.2 per cent in 1989. Both figures are revised sharply upward from the fund's April projections of 4.1 percent and 3.8 per cent, respectively.

Steady

For West Germany, the IMF anticipates a relatively modest real growth rate of 2.3 per cent for 1988, easing to 1.8 per cent in 1989. In April, the IMF projected a steady annual growth rate for Germany of 1.7 per cent between 1987 and 1989.

Britain's real GNP is likely to grow by 3.2 per cent in 1988, slowing to a 2.2 per cent rate in 1989. After a robust 4.0 per cent growth this year, Canada's GNP will subside to 3.1 per cent in 1989. France should see its growth rate ease to 2.4 per cent in 1989 from a projected 2.9 per cent this year. And in Italy growth is expected to slow to 2.4 per cent in 1989 from 3.0 per cent in 1988.

Growth in the developing countries is projected at 3.6 per cent in 1988, rising to 4.0 per cent in 1989. Both figures were little-changed from the IMF's April outlook.

The IMF staff said that in view of the prevailing wage and price moderation, it was not projecting any significant upswing in inflation. They cautioned, however, that there are a number of "warning signals." Pressure

These include rapidly declining unemployment together with renewed upward pressure on wage settlements, especially in the US, the UK and Canada; increasing rates of capacity utilisation; and a strong rise in non-oil commodity prices.

- The IMF believes that sumer prices in the industrial world will rise by 3.2 per cent in 1988, accelerating to 3.5 per cent next year. The US rate of inflation is expected to quicken to 4.5 per cent in 1989 from 4.1 per cent in 1988, while consumer prices in Germany are slated to rise by 1.2 per cent in 1988 and by 2.3 per cent in 1989.

Mideast sales push in Japan driving oil prices down

TOKYO, Sept 7, (Reuter): Saudi Arabia's offer of volume discounts to Japanese crude oil buyers is likely to spark a renewed sales push by other Middle East Gulf producers and will drive prices even lower, oil experts said today.

Oil prices have already plunged nearly $6 below the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries' (OPEC) official $18a-barrel because members of the oil organisation have apparently abandoned any defence of the target price in favour of a fight for market share, they said.

He said his company's record as a technically and financially successful venture had encouraged it to consider further

QAFCO produced 300,000 tonnes of urea per annum when it went into operation in 1973, and later one urea and two ammonia plants were added. Last year, QAFCO produced 734,000 tonnes of urea and 682,000 tonnes of ammonia.

Improved fertilizer prices and increased demand for ammonia ther expansion.

A number of foreign compan-ies, including the Norwegian Norsk Hydro, which has a 25 per cent stake in QAFCO, have expressed willingness to take part in the new project.
The QAFCO complex, owned by the Qatar General Petroleum Corporation (75 per cent) and the Norwegian Norsk Hydro (25 per. cent) now has a design production capacity of 1,800 tonnes of ammonia and 2,000 tonnes of urea per day. The company's products are being sold to about 40 countries. with India and China as the main 446/0

U.K. STOCKS EASIER BUT ABOVE LOWS IN LATE TRADE LONDON, SEPT 7, REUTER - EQUITY PRICES WERE MOSTLY EASIER IN THIN LATE TRADE BUT ABOVE THE DAY'S LOWS AS A MODEST OPENING RALLY ON WALL STREET HELPED THE MARKET CLAW BACK SOME OF THE

EARLY LOSS. DEALERS SAID THE INITIAL FALL THIS MORNING WAS PROMPTED BY SELLING INTO THE RALLY WHICH BEGAN LAST FRIDAY AND THIS GATHERED PACE WHEN A RAPIDLY SLIDING CRUDE PRICE LED OIL SHARES LOWER. NOWEVER, A PARTIAL RECOVERY IN OIL PRICES THIS AFTERNOON, COUPLED WITH A BATCH OF GOOD COMPANY RESULTS EARLIER, HELPED UNDERPIN THE MARKET. AT 1517 GMT, THE FISE 100 SHARE INDEX WAS

9.5 PGINTS LOWER AT 1,758.5 AFTER HITTING A LOW OF 1750.3. DEALERS BELIEVE TODAY'S LACKLUSTRE TRADING MAY BECOME A SHORT-TERM PATTERN, WITH THE MARKET STAYING HIGHLY CAUTIOUS AS IT MAITS FOR AUGUST'S BRITISH ECONOMIC STATISTICS TO REVEAL THE EFFECT, IF ANY, OF THE RECENT RISES IN INTEREST RATES. THE AUGUST BALANCE OF PAYMENTS DATA ON SEPTEMBER 27 IS LIKELY TO HAVE THE LARGEST IMPACT. "I CAN'T SEE ANYTHING STIRRING UNTIL THE U.K. INSTITUTIONS DECIDE TO RETURN TO THE MARKET AND I HAVE A MASTY FEELING THAT MAY NOT BE FOR SOME TIME," ONE DEALER SAID. HE ESTIMATED THAT THE INSTITUTIONS HAVE QUADRUPLED THEIR CASH HOLDINGS OVER THE LAST YEAR AND NOW SHOW AN AVERAGE LIQUIDITY RATIO OF 15 PCT.

London Gold

LONDON, SEPT 7, REUTER - GOLD BULLION CLOSED ON THE SESSION LOW OF 426.00/426.50 DLRS PER CUNCE IN LIGHT ACTIVITY, WITH DEALERS WATCHING SHORT-TERM MOVEMENTS IN CRUDE OIL PRICES FOR

THE CLOSING GOLD PRICE WAS DOWN 2.30 DLRS FROM YESTERDAY'S CLOSE, BUT STILL ABOVE THE RECENT TECHNICAL SUPPORT LEVEL OF 425 DLRS.

THE MARKET SEEMED TO TAKE ITS CUE FROM CRUDE DIL PRICES WHICH WERE UNDER PRESSURE MOST OF THE DAY. GOLD PRICES RECOVERED SLIGHTLY IN LATE AFTERNOON IN LINE WITH A SLIGHT RECOVERY IN OIL MARKETS, BUT PRESSURE REAPPEARED ON ENERGY FUTURES IN NEW YORK.

London Money Market

LONDON, SEPT 7, REUTER - MONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES WERE SLIGHTLY FIRMER ON THE DAY AT THE LONGER END OF THE INTERBANK MARKET AFTER AN EASIER OPENING. ONE DEALER AT A U.K. CLEARING BANK SAID, "THE MAIN QUESTION

TODAY IS WHY THE RATES WERE SOFTER AT THE START OF TRADING. BASICALLY THEY'VE JUST GONE BACK TO WHERE THEY SHOULD BE. IN LATE TRADING, BENCHMARK THREE MONTH INTERBANK MONEY WAS QUOTED NET UNCHANGED AT 12-3/16 1/16 PCT AFTER STARTING THE DAY AT 12-1/16 11-15/16 PCT. IN LONGER DATES, SIX MONTHS STOOD AT 12-1/4 3/16 PCT AFTER 12-1/16 11-15/16 AT THE OPENING AND 12-3/16 1/16 LATE YESTERDAY.

Wall Street Market Report

New York, Sept 7. (Reuter): Wall Street stocks edged higher again after giving up much of their early gains. Prudential Bache market watcher Larry Wachtel said the shifting of direction. was constructive for future gains though he said low volume showed a lack of conviction in

The Dow was up six at 2069 and has ranged between 2066 and 2079. Gaining issues led decliners three-to-two. Wachtel said that economic reports do not support worries that overheating will cause the Federal Reserve to tighten credit and push interest rates higher. The next durable goods orders report is the only problem in signt, and that's uncertain, he

Fiat boosts its stake in Ferrari

TURIN, Italy, Sept 7, (Reuter): Italian carmarker Fiat SPA said loday it bought the late Enzo Ferrari's 40-per cent stake in the sportscar company which bears his name, boosting its holding to 90 per cent.

Fiat, Italy's largest private industrial company, said it paid 19 billion lire ($13.6 million) for the shares.

Ferrari, who died on August 14 aged 90, founded his company in 1943. The reclusive former racing car driver won a worldwide reputation for his scarlet Formula One cars and sleek, expensive sports models.

Until last year, he worked a regular full day at the company's headquarters just outside Modena in northern Italy.

Fiat, which already runs Alfa Romeo and Lancia, already owned half of Ferrari after buying into the company in 1969. It had held an option on Enzo Ferrari's shareholding since Ferrari's son, Piero Lardi, is vice chairman of the company and owns the remaining 10 per cent. A Fiat spokeswoman said there were no plans to buy him out.

The company has not said who will take over management of the racing division, the essence of the company's image of life in the fast lane, which Ferrari directed up to his death. The drivers who piloted his cars read like a motor racing hall of fame — Alberto Ascari, Juan Fangio, Wolfgang von Trips, Mike Hawthorn, John Surtees and Niki Lauda. Michele Alboreto and Austria's Gerhard Berger drove for Ferrari in 1987. Ferrari makes nearly 4,000

Dollar unsettled on yen confidence

LONDON, Sept 7, (Reuter): The dollar was unsettled today when investors switched funds into yen after Bank of Japan Governor Satoshi Sumita said the Central Bank might come to the aid of the Japanese currency if it fell substantially.

Lower oil prices and a rise in short-term Japanese bank interest rates helped the yen higher, dealers said. Sumita said however that the bank was not considering an increase in its key discount rate. On glutted oil spot markets, crude prices dipped to be quoted below $13 a barrel for immediate delivery for the first time since October, 1986, but they recovered to around $13.15 by late afternoon.

Volume was thin on currency markets as dealers awaited Friday's US producer prices for fresh signals about whether inflationary pressures are subsiding in America.

Dollar sentiment is looking a little soft," said one dealer with a major British bank.

The dollar closed in London at 1.8465 marks, above the day's low in Europe of 1.8400 and Tuesday's finish of 1.8420 marks. But it weakened against the yen, ending at 133.75 yen compared with Tuesday's close

The mark looked stronger against other European curren-

It was fixed at a record high against the Italian lira in Frankfurt and at a six-month high against the French franc. Dealers cited positive West German growth data this week and the prospect that the country's trade surplus might rise.

Business was thin on European bourses.

The Dow Jones industrial average, however, had lost its gains to trade at 2,060.81 by midday, down 4.45 on Tuesday's close. Prudential Bache market analyst Larry Wachtel said low volume showed a lack of conviction among players.

In Frankfurt and Paris, shares ended higher while in Zurich and Milan the bourse indices ended largely unchanged.

Earlier in Asia, shares had risen on the important Tokyo market with the Nikkei Average up 183.50 points at 27,504.01 and in Hong Kong, but not in Syd-

In London, gold bullion edged up 25 cents per ounce from its morning setting, being fixed at $427.25 in the afternoon.

In London, equity prices were mostly easier in thin late trade but above the day's lows as a modest opening rally on Wall

Street helped the market claw back some of the early loss. Dealers said the initial fall this morning was prompted by selling into the rally which began last Friday and this gathered pace when a rapidly sliding crude price led oil shares lower.

However, a partial recovery in oil prices this afternoon, coupled with a batch of good company results earlier, helped underpin the market. At 1517 GMT, the FTSE 100 share index was 9.5 points lower at 1,758.5 after hitting a low of 1750.3.

Money Dealers believe today's lacklustre trading may become a short-term pattern, with the market staying highly cautious as it waits for August's British economic statistics to reveal the effect, if any, of the recent rises in interest rates.

The August balance of payments data on Sept 27 is likely to have the largest impact.

"I can't see anything stirring until the UK institutions decide to return to the market and I have a nasty feeling that may not be for some time," one dealer said. He estimated that the institutions have quadrupled their cash holdings over the last year and now show an average liquidity ratio of 15 per cent.

Dealers point out that the FTSE 100 would have to fall 150 points to around 1,600 before equities provided even a six per cent yield. That is half of what the institutions can get on their cash

if they put it in the money market. "Why should the institutions put their money in a precarious stock market when they can get a higher return from sticking it in a building society?" asked one

Dealers now see the market continuing to drift unless a major swing on Wall Street or a couple of really large bids emerge to break the lethargy.

Crude oil prices had slid around $1 since last Friday on fears of OPEC over-production and reports that Saudi Arabia will offer lower prices and volume incentives to Japanese customers.

Rise

Although crude prices recovered this afternoon, there is growing speculation that the major OPEC members will abandon all defence of their official $18-a-barrel price and enter a price war, dealers said.

Among the oil producers, BP dropped 7p to 239, Shell shed 16p to 976 and Enterprise lost 15p to 444. BP partly-paid, 4p off at 142, were the most active shares with 7.5 million traded.

Dealers said some good company results and continuing speculative interest kept the construction sector lively.

Costain ended 13p higher after reporting a 41 per cent rise in first-half pre-tax profit to £29.5 million. Recent market specula-tion on the possible bid intentions of P and O towards Taylor Woodrow is prompting interest in Trafalgar House's 6.1 per cent stake in Costain. Woodrow eased 6p to 625.

Wimpey ended 6p weaker at 239 after reporting a 60 per cent leap in first-half pre-tax profits to £40.7 million. Cement to property group Blue Circle also reported half-year profits at the top of expectations and it ended 1p off at 435.

Down

Tobacco to insurance group BAT was down 1p at 436 after reporting half-year pre-tax profits of £711 million, compared with 642 million last year, roughly in the middle of forecasts. Sun Alliance rose 14p to 959 in reaction to a 75 per cent leap in half-year profits to £182.3 million — well above expecta-

Among others reporting, BICC added 1p to 345 and Hills-down eased 5p to 268, in com-mon with Legal and General at

Oil prices approach 2-year lows on over-supplied markets

LONDON, Sept 7, (Reuter): Oil prices depressed by excess supplies, neared two-year lows in Europe today, reviving memories of the 1986 spot market crash when crude fell to $9 a barrel.

Britain's Brent blend, the most widely traded crude internationally, was quoted just under $13 a barrel for immediate delivery for the first time since October, 1986. That was about $1.50 down on prices a week ago.

Lower A key factor weighing the market down was soaring output among members of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). A Reuter survey showed the 13-nation group pumped 20 million barrels per day (BPD) in August, one million more than in July.

"Supply and demand fundamentals dictate that the price should be lower than it is now," said Peter Nicol, oil analyst at Chase Manhattan Bank in LonAnother London analyst. Geoff Pyne, at stockbrokers Phillips and Drew, agreed. Prices have further to go, maybe one or two dollars per barrel. I can't see a reason for the market to find support in September," he said.

Crude output from several key non-OPEC producers is also rising, offsetting declines in the United States and other large producers and undercutting OPEC's attempts to lift oil prices this year, according to another Reuter survey.

Crash.

Whether oil markets will see a repetition of the price crash of 1986 remains to be seen. But memories of the crash are starting to flood back.

"It could well be that we will see 1986 over again," one oil trader said.

OPEC production in August was far in excess of demand and is likely to remain so this month, oil analysts said.

"September OPEC output will be around 20 million BPD also," said Phillips and Drew's Pyne, "demand for OPEC oil will be swamped. To get any support for prices we can only look to market sentiment. This is very negative and there is no reason at the moment for it to be reversed."

Attention

Oil analysts estimate that demand for OPEC oil is running around 18.5 million BPD, 1.5 milion below output, and will remain at that level for the rest

Meanwhile, market attention will be focused on the next meeting of OPEC's price monitoring committee. The five-member panel, made up of the oil ministers of Algeria, Indonésia, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela, is widely expected to meet this month.

The price committee can call an emergency meeting of all 13 OPEC ministers if it feels prices have deviated too far from the group's target of $18 a barrel.

WORLD STOCK ROUNDUP

SYDNEY, Sept 7, (Reuter): The market retreated to close lower in featureless trading as leading stocks fell. It took no lead from a market advance in Japan as bearish sentiment persisted. The All Ordinaries index fell 7.1 to 1,560.

TOKYO: Share prices climbed all day to end on highs after optimism sparked by overnight Wall Street gains and a stronger yen. The Nikkei index rose 183.5 to 27,504.01.

HONG KONG: Prices ended higher following rises in Wall Street and Tokyo. The Hang Seng rose 23.14 to 2,525,14.

SINGAPORE: Prices closed marginally lower with a lack of buying interest and some profittaking. The Straits Times industrial index fell 0.67 to 1,061.61.

BOMBAY: Prices moved up after the previous day's mild setback as state-owned financial institutions led buyers back. Cement prices were especially strong on rumours of rises in the controlled price.

FRANKFURT: Shares closed firmer across the board, with car stocks gaining considerably. But turnover was low. The Dax index rose 5.98 to 1,185.74.

ZURICH: Prices closed little changed in quiet trading as investors waited for new impulses.

The Swiss index rose 0.8 to 884.5. PARIS: Prices staged a late rally to end the continuous session firmer in buoyant trading, sourted by Wall Street's strong opening and a string of good French corporate results.

LONDON: Prices were mostly easier in thin late trading but above the day's lows as a modest opening rally on Wall Street helped the market claw back some of the early loss.

NEW YORK: Stocks edged higher again in mid-morning after giving up much of their early gains. The Dow was up six

Benson and Hedges Management Challenge

Ernst and Whinney team wins title

By Jadranka Porter

THE Ernst and Whinney team yesterday won the Kuwait title in the Benson and Hedges Management Challenge.

The team will compete in November's grand final in Penanag, Malaysia.

The Al Mulla Group of Companies came second in what was a very close competition. Six teams competed, but it was the entrepreneurial skills that set the winners, Craig Ross, Ivan da Silva and Deepak Khullar, apart from other teams. They raised the value of the computer-simulated company by calculated risks, but it was their spirit of enterprise that the organisers appreciated. Ernst and Whinney is an accounting firm. Contest

The Benson and Hedges Management Challenge, now in its fifth year, is a Gulf-wide contest in management skills. There were only five Kuwaitis among 18 contestants. They were all weeded out in the first round which was a paper and pencil test. We would like to see more Gulf nationals take part in the contest," said Bob Thomas of Ashridge Management College in England who ran the

from England, who wrote the software for the contest noted that the response to the competition and the quality of entrants has been increasing over the years.

The contest is run in three stages.

In the first stage the contestants are presented with a management problem in a case study and have to answer multiple-choice questions.

At the second stage, the country finals, the teams are expected to manage a computer simulation of a real business. They make a set of decisions on marketing, production, pricing and finance and then assess the effect on the market place.

"They are expected to make a set of decicions used to define how they hope the company will perform in the next year," said

The result is differing trading performances — some operate with high volume and low profit, and others have a very good return on capital but are small and weak in other ways, said

Thomas. Eight Gulf teams will compete at the Grand Final stage in Malaysia. The teams will again perform a business simulation exercise, but the problems will be replicas of situations the contestants face in the Gulf. The exercise will enable contestants to simulate managing a business for about three years.

Teams who are capable of sophisticated financial analysis. who rely on market research and can anticipate the behaviour of competitors will come out on top, said Thomas.

"The competition aims to find and reward the best management team among the GCC nations, Thomas said. "It combines learning, team building and fun."

Tony Liddle of Benson and Hedges said the contest aims to contribute to the developing business scene in the Gulf states. The winners of the Grand Final will each receive a $10,000 portfolio of gold shares, as well as a management Challenge Gold Medal, minted 22 carat gold by Sink and Co. of London. All grand finalists will receive a gold medal.

Chamber president calls a turning point in US economic history

New trade law could trigger retaliation against exports

WASHINGTON, Sept 7. (AP): With a new US trade law finally in effect. American businesses are mobilising to seize the opportunities it offers. But some economists are still fretting that even in its water-down form, the measure could spark harmful retaliation against US exports.

The three-year battle to get the 1,000 page bill through Congress marks only the beginning of a bigger fight to make sure that the law is fully utilised, supporters contend.

The US Chamber of Commerce, a business group, has prepared a detailed guide to acquaint business leaders with a law that chamber president Richard Lesher calls a "turning point in US economic history. The law, which went into effect on Aug 23, substantially reduces US bureaucratic procedures for companies that want to sell products abroad and offers new support to US businessmen who feel foreign markets are discriminating against their goods.

Myths

The chamber's guide also seeks to explode what the business group believes are myths about the legislation.

"There has been an enormous amount of misunderstanding about what this trade bill is," said William T. Archey, the chamber's top trade expert. He blamed this on the fact that the legislation took three years to emerge from Congress, with much of the early attention focused on heavily protectionist provisions that were jettisoned from the final product.

"I think those who would argue that it is protectionist should be required to read it first," Archey said. But private economists still worry about provisions that will make it easier for the United States to impose import curbs in retaliation for alleged unfair trading practices by other nations. They contend that this could prompt other countries to retaliate by raising barriers against US products. Reaction

They note that reaction has been overwhelmingly negative from both the Far East and

We have made a lot of people overseas mad and there is always the risk that they will react negatively to pressure we are applying to get them to open up their markets," said David Wys of Data Resources Inc., a US economic forecasting firm.

Since the legislation gives the President a large amount of leeway in deciding whether to retaliate, both presidential candidates are being watched carefully for clues on how they would handle the new law.

"The law by itself is not going to solve the trade problem. But it provides the tools to an executive who wants to address the problem forcefully," said Mark

Anderson, an economist with the AFL-CIO, the nation's largest trade union organisation. Anderson said that Vice-President George Bush would likely continue the free-trade emphasis of the Reagan years, while Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis has pledged a more forceful attack on the country's huge trade deficits. The AFL-CIO has endorsed Duk-

Other economists agreed that Dukakis would be more activist on trade matters than Bush, but they said that even a Democratic administration would not use the full powers of the legislation for fear of retaliation.

"Both of these candidates are basically internationalists. Dukakis would be tougher than Bush, but I don't think the risk of a trade war is that great because I don't think Dukakis is going to push the bill to its limit." Wyss

Intention

The first sign of the new administration's intention is likely to come next April when the legislation requires the US trade representative, an appointee of the President, to produce a list of targeted countries along with a plan for negotiations aimed at removing trade

Countries with large surpluses such as Japan. West Germany and Korea are likely candidates to be on the list.

Long before then, however, the trade law should have a such high-technology equipment as computers. The law substantially reduces licensing requirements for these exports.

While the original rules were designed to prevent defencerelated equipment from falling into the hands of the Soviet Union or its allies, supporters of the change contended that American businesses were losing $9.3 billion annually in sales because of unnecessary licensing requirements. The change is expected to eliminate the need for more than 25,000 export licences a year on products deemed to be of little use militarily.

4842988, 4843988, ext. 3614

Provision The Chamber of Commerce and many other business groups opposed the trade bill as it was first passed by Congress, objecting to a provision tacked on to the measure that would have required US companies to give their American workers advance notice of layoffs.

British record trade deficit reflects incompetence: Kinnock much," said Kinnock...

BOURNEMOUTH, England, Sept 7, (AP): Opposition Labour Party leader Neil Kinnock accused the Conservative government today of incompetence and irresponsibility for allowing Britain to run up a record trade deficit.

Addressing the annual con-ference of the national labour federation, the Trades Union Congress, Kinnock charged that industry would suffer from interest rate hikes which he said were the government's only tool for controlling inflation and

"The only people who stay ahead of the game in Lawson's economy are those whose incomes are so high and their tax cuts so huge that interest rate increases don't really matter very

Last spring, Chancellor of the Exchequer Nigel Lawson slashed the top rate of income tax from 60 per cent to 40 per cent, and lowered the basic rate two points to 25 per cent. Critics have blamed the tax cuts partly for a surge in consumer spending on imported goods, helping fuel the record trade deficit in July of £2.65 billion ($4.5 billion). It meant Britain's overall deficit is certain to soar above the $4 billion Lawson had forecast for the entire year.

After announcing the July deficit on Aug 28, the government hiked the base rate by one point to a 2-1/2-year high of 12 per cent. It was the eighth increase since early June. Earlier, Kinnock said it was 'highly unlikely" that the Labour Party would expel the Electricians' Union which on Monday was ousted from the Trades Union Congress for signing single-union, no-strike deals:

Expulsion of the Electricians' Union would be seen as undermining Kinnock's aim of moderating the party's image and could lead other unions with right-of-centre leaderships to

Charlie Sheen: recovering from the too-much-too-soon syndrome

By Ivor Davis

AT the age of 22 he was smitten by a condition that has afflicted many young Hollywood actors. Charlie Sheen, star of Platoon (1986) and Wall Street (1987), suffered from a severe case of the too-much-too-soon syndrome.

Sheen's round soft face is framed with spiky-looking jetblack hair. The "punk" look is for "Major League," his movie due out next spring in which he plays a juvenile deliquent recruited to become a star baseball pitcher. His recently completed film: "Eight Men Out" in which he plays outfiel-der Hap Felsch of the Chicago Winte Sox, was released last month in the USA. A third movie, Young Guns is based on the story of Billy the Kid. The movie masquerades as a Western but resembles a contemporary gang movie with its youthful cast, rock-music score and drug scenes (Billy's men are shown getting high on peyote). "We could have played the roles on Harley-Davidsons instead of horses and if would have come out the

to share billing with his older brother Emilio Estevez, 26, who plays the itchy-fingered tiller Billy the Kid. The $10.5 million film also stars Keifer Sutherland, Lou Diamond Phillips, Casey Siemaszko and Dermot Mulroney.

Keen Before discussing why he was so keen to star in Young Guns Sheen talks about how he became burned-out. "You take a 21-year-old kid and put him in my situation. With the success of Platoon, which made $150 million and won the best-picture Oscar, and having grown up around such guys as Cruise, Judd, Rob, Emilio, what do you do for an encore?" he asks. Sheen is referring to his Brat Pack days when he and Estevez, Tom Cruise, Judd Nelson, Rob Lowe and Sean Penr embraced Hollywood's nightlife as they churned out movies and captivated the media. "It was a lot to deal with not being able to do anything without being observed and mobbed," says

Sheen. "So I decided to bury myself in the social whirlwind." For Sheen real life began to imitate art while he was making Wall Street for director Oliver Stone. By day he faced the camera hung over and bloated as he portrayed Bud Fox, the cutthroat broker seduced by visions of money, power and women. By night he drank excessively.

Even his father, who starred with him in Wall Street, could do little to straighten him out. "Look, he is spoiled," said the elder Sheen. "He does run around too much, have too many girlfriends. He doesn't know hard times.

And Estevez, who pushed for Sheen to get the part in "Young would try to help out when he was going though this difficult periods, but it's hard for me to play big brother," he says.

People have to do their own thing and make their own dis-

For Sheen the turnaround came at a rock concert featuring U-2. Fuelled by a daylong drinking binge, he went backstage to see Bono, lead singer of the band whose members advocate abstinence from alcohol and drugs. Says Sheen: "Bono said, "You can stay with the booze and become a loser or give it up and stay with us'.'

Sheen gave up heavy drinking, began daily 5 am runs and hired a personal trainer. He was ready Estevez suggested he take a small role (Sheen's character gets killed halfway through the movie) in "Young Guns."

The reason I took the part was to work with Emilio," says Sheen. "Emilio plays the wild guy and I'm the cool head. It was opposite the way we are in life. It brought us closer. We feuded as kids and now we're best friends."

Sheen grew up in Malibu, Calif., using the name Carlos Irwin Estevez (Estevez is the family's real name). Although his father wanted his four children (also including Ramon and Renee Estevez) to go to

Moonlighting to the big screen By Ivor Davis

HE was once about as accessible an actor as Marlon Brando. But what a difference a hit film and a $5 million salary make. Suddenly, the reclusive Bruce Willis poses for the May cover of Vanity Fair, smiles for television cameras and sits in a New York City hotel suite to chat about his life. Willis is anxious to talk about his new action-packed movie Die Hard in which he plays New York City detective John McClane, who becomes the only hope for small group of hostages, including his estran-ged wife (Bonnie Bedelia), trapped in a Los Angeles high rise seized by terrorists.

According to the 33-year-old actor, McClane is closer to the real Bruce Willis than David Addison, his alter ego on the ABC-TV series Moonlighting. "McClane is a guy who would rather stand in the back of the crowd. He doesn't want to be a hero. I can relate to that," says Willis.

For too long, he says, movie audiences have been served a diet of superheroes. "Can you relate to Rambo?" he asks. But I know guys like McClane – guys who are afraid, guys who have anxiety. I wanted to play that. I've never been so enthusiastic about anything.

He is not the only one. Audiences also love Die Hard, which has earned more than $30 million since it opened in July. Not bad for a college dropout who has made only two movies — Sunset (1988) and Blind Date (1987) — and a TV series. "It's called, 'Get what you can get when you can get it, he says. "Show business is tough. Who is to say that next year my career will not be over? I could be history. No one is going to say, 'Oh, poor Bruce Willis. Let's bringhim back and give him a lot of money.' So you have to get it while it's there."

The subject of megabucks, he explains, makes him uncomfortable because he fears for the safety of the unborn child he and his wife Demi Moore are expecting at the end of September. "I'm afraid some nut is going to read this stuff and say, Hey man, he makes millions of dollars. Let's get some. Let's steal his baby. It scares me. It can happen. It's what I feel in my heart," he says.

'I stay out of situations (interviews) like this as much as can," he continues. "I don't feel the need to reveal details of my life. Some actors do. They'll tell you everything they ever did -"Oh, I was a cocaine addict. I had a relationship with a Shetland pony when I was 15. Who wants to hear that stuff? I don't feel that it's my responsibility to open my private life to you. My work ends when I go home at the end of the day."

Encouraged

But Willis encouraged publicity with tales of his rowdy parties, altercations with paparazzi and romance with Moore, whom he met through his friend and her ex-boyfriend Emilio Estevez. "I went through a time when more focus was placed on what I did when I got done working. The first couple of years I had no idea how to deal with being a celebrity. I thought I would go back to being anonymous, then I realized it was going to get more intense before it got quiet.

Willis says part of the problem lies in his "Moonlighting" character. "I'm in somebody's living room every Tuesday night and people watch TV in their underwear, eating in bed. They think they know you. You don't know how important your anonymity is until it is taken away. They come up to you and ask you to say something funny.

Hey, give me that lopsided grin. Be David Addison. I've never been that kind of gregarious guy. It made me withdraw," he says.

Advantages

One of the advantages of his movie success is that Willis can look forward to a time when "Moonlighting" will be a memory. "I want to leave it behind," he says. "I've explored it all. There are only so many times I can make the same face. In 'Die Hard' director John McTiernan gave me time to find this character, and TV doesn't give you that."

Willis says his character in the film Die-Hard is closer to the real Bruce Willis than David Addison, his alter ego in Moonlighting.

What television does give you is the exposure that makes $5 million a picture a reality. And whether he likes it or not Willis is contracted for two more seasons of "Moonlighting." That, he says, could be good or bad, depending on whether the show can recover from co-star Cybill Shepherd's maternity leave.

"The appeal of our show is the fact that there isn't any format. We could do Shakespeare or a show in black and white. It was innovative. It turned the show into one of the most suc-cessful on TV, but then Cybill went away for 14 weeks and we an injured star," he says.

Working around the pregnancy, he says, forced them into a format similar to other shows with hackneyed cliffhanger endings. "I would like to see it get back to what we did in the first couple of years," he says. "But I will work just as hard for the next two years because I like to think of myself as a professional."

Willis is currently in Tennessee shooting In Country in which he plays a Vietnam veteran trying to survive the post-Vietnam syndrome with his orphaned niece (Emily Lloyd). "I'm a little scared of In Country," he says. "I lost a couple of friends in Vietnam. was drafted the year they ended the war. It's a personal story. don't think anyone has done the vets justice yet. These people need to be hugged and told they're OK. I want to speak for them. The film is about the healing process, it's about coming back to life." Which is exactly what Willis says he has done, leaving his hard-drinking bachelors days behind and settling into domestic bliss in a beach house in Malibu, Calif. There are no plans, he says, for him and Moore to work together on a movie.

"We're having so much fur playing," he says. "Why ruin it? We would rather be in love than working together. What I would like to do after the baby is born is have Demi go to work and me stay home with the baby."

That is, he explains, until the next baby. "Yeah, sure, I want my own little softball team." he says.

"It keeps getting better and better," he continues. "I've never been happier. I'm expecting a baby. I'm in love with my wife, I've got a hit film. Let me tell you, life is very, very good."

Perfect English gentleman seeks new image

By Jane Fletcher

SOME actors shed blood, sweat and tears for a role. They distort their figures, wear outrageous disguises and measure a good performance by the amount of pain they have to suffer to achieve it. Heart-throb Charles Dance does things differently. He comes from the stiff upper lip school of acting. The sandy-haired, freckle-faced actor, last seen as the Earl of Erroll in White Mischief, has made his mark by typifying English elegance and good breeding.

Now he is to repeat his success by playing the quintessential Englishman abroad in the new film Pascali's Island, opposite Helen Mirren and Ben Kingsley.

The film, which premiered at the Cannes Film Festival sees Charles as traveller Anthony Bowles, equipped with Panama Dance with Meryl Streep in Plenty.

Superstar Charles Dance has made his name by playing stiff upper lip Englishmen ... a tag he is now desperately trying to lose.

hat, walking cane and his usual look of total composure. Charles says: "I see Bowles as the prototypical British adventurer. Coming from the middle classes, he is an opportunist with the temperament of an artist, a rogue who hides under the mask of culture."

It is the type of role which has so endeared Charles to Hollywood. He is now one of the most sought after English actors in America and has comfortably taken his place in the major star league. But it is a situation that Charles finds rather perplexing.

"It is ludicrous," he says. "My name actually seems to mean more to people in America than in my own country. The more success I have, the more bizarre the situation Dance is, of course, the natural to play the role of the English gentleman. Six feet three inches tall, he always seems to stand ramrod straight and his hooded green-blue eyes never give his emotions away. Even his name suits him perfec-tly — somehow "Charlie" just wouldn't seem right. Charles, 42, first came to public attention playing smouldering Guy Perron in the lavish

TV series, The Jewel In The Crown. Later, he was handpicked by Meryl Streep to play her aristocratic husband in Plenty and he was perfectly cast as the caddish Earl of Erroll in White Mischief, even though at one point during the film he had to wear a dress! Nevertheless. he still managed to hang on to his dignity, although he jokingly refers to the incident as "my worst career move."

Yet the one role for which Charles seemed eminently suitable - that of James Bond - was the one he didn't want. "It's all very simple," he explains with a charming smile. My agent was phoned and asked if I would do a test for the part of James Bond. But I didn't consider James Bond to be a part which would have helped my career so I said I wasn't interested."

He did. however, make a fleeting appearance in one Bond epic. "I was the third villain from the right, name of Klaus, in For Your Eyes Only. I did it purely for the experience — and the money!"

Following his performance as Guy Perron, Charles was inundated by fanmail from adoring females. He was immediately labelled the thinking woman's crumpet,' something he now says he finds flattering, but ultimately amusing. "It goes in one ear and out the other. Don't tag me with that sex symbol nonsense," he pleads. "It's just another label and I don't want to be an onscreen passion stirrer.

"Besides beauty is very much in the eye of the beholder — I'm sure there are a lot of women who would find me repellent."

He does admit, however, that he has empathy with the camera — "I know this peculiar face of mine does photograph well" - and he works hard at keeping his figure in shape. He rarely touches alcohol and is a self-confessed keep-fit fanatic, who has been known to run four and a half miles a day. He also pumps iron, the result of which can be seen when he strips down to his breeches in Pascali's Island.

But although Charles is now besieged with film offers, success took a long time coming. The son of a civil engineer, he was born in Plymouth in 1946 and moved to Dartmoor after his father died. He says he enjoyed school plays as a young boy, but gave them up when he developed a stammer in his

He had no ambition to become an actor until, at the age of 19, he became a graphics student and got involved in amateur dramatics once more. Fortunately, his debilitating stammer soon disappeared.

After he left art school, Charles studied with two ex-actors who had coached acting students. They taught the aspiring actor, demanding only two pints of beer an hour as payment.

Such unorthodox training reaped its rewards. By 1973. Charles had been accepted by the Royal Shakespeare company and took a number of prestigious theatrical roles. The he branched into television and eventually won the role of Guy Perron which was to launch him on the path to international success.

Charles says he does not want to be typecast - "stiff upper lip parts can be limiting and boring" and gladly took the role of the Devil in the Eddie Murphy film, The Golden Child. Yet he admits he goes where the work is, "although I try to reject the rubbish and go for the challenging roles."

His most severe critic is his wife, Jo. He says: "She soon tells me if I'm getting pompous and complacent. We've been married for as long as I've been an actor and she much prefers being married to a successful actor than an unsuccessful

Charles Dance: does not want to be typecast. Stiff upper lip parts can be limiting and boring, he says.

He says of The Golden Child: "That awful Eddie Murphy film. If you have a weekend filled with boredom, then go and see it. I don't advise it otherwise!"

And his relationship with Meryl Steep on Plenty was decidedly cool. When they had to get on for the sake of the script, they did, says Charles. When they didn't, they didn't.

Even White Mischief, which is doing mega business in America, failed to come up to Charles' high expectations. Playing opposite Greta Scacchi, he says the intention of the film was to bring out the redeeming features of the decadent and adulterous Happy Valley set who settled in Kenya in the 1930s. "Personally, I don't think we achieved that, which is a disappoint-

For a time the Dance family lived in How wood, but it wasn't a happy time. Charles now seems to find more satisfaction with European films because he feels they are less intent on commercial success.

For that reason he accepted the role of legendary director, D.W. Griffith in the film, Good Morning Babylon, shot in Italy. It was an enjoyable experience and turned Charles' own thoughts to directing. "I have found the subject I want to do. I have a lot to learn, but I know the people who can teach

But for the time being, Charies Dance will continue still to be seen in front of the camera "I'm a perfectionist and I don't see any point in being any other," he says. "I'm a good actor, but I could always be better. Besides, I don't want to be known as Guy Perron

MOVIE mogul Harry Cohn fumed at his scriptwriters: Even I know that in Biblical times people didn't go around saying 'Yes sireee! No siree'!"

The puzzled writers agreed but couldn't understand where these words were in their script. Then Cohn pointed to the lines No, sire" and "Yes, sire."

It was the same Cohn who heard there was a good story called The Iliad by someone called Homer. He asked his writers to produce a synopsis for possible screening. But he rejected it with the words: "Too many goddam Greeks in it."

And he wasn't the only studio head in Hollywood's hey-day to betray his ignorance. So too did Jack Warner when he was introduced to Einstein as 'the man who discovered the theory of relativity.

"I have a theory about relativity, too," Warner. "Don't ever employ them."

Then there was Walt Disney. who after hearing some of the Pastoral Symphony on the soundtrack of his 'Fantasia' exclaimed: "Gee, this will make Beethoven a star.

These and other hilarious stories can be found in an amusing new book* which mines a rich vein from film-making in the Thirties, Forties and Fif-

Few modern artists are represented, though there's Woody Allen's famous quip "I don't want to achieve immortality through my work. I want to achieve it through not dying." And the story of Jack Nicholson falling off a horse, breaking his wrist, then climbing back on again, "I wouldn't have done that if I'd been a real person." he said.

Naturally, any book of this kind is incomplete without the Sam Goldwynisms. There are the familiar ones like "Include me out," "You've got to take the bull by the teeth," "It rolls off my back like a duck" and Why did he call the baby Bill? Every Tom, Dick and Harry is called Bill.

But there's also an unfamiliar one of Sam as he studied the blurb for a new picture. It reads: "The directorial genius of Mamoulian, the beauty of Sten and the producing genius of Goldwyn have been combined to make the world's greatest entertain-

Edward G. Robinson once told Sam Goldwyn: "My studio is going to make The Merchant of Venice and they want me to play Shylock. Should I agree?" Goldwyn replied: "Screw 'em. Tell 'em you'll only play the merchant.'

But colleagues thought money-minded Sam really had gone crazy when he bought a musical called Billion Dollar Baby, which had been a flop on Broadway. "I got a great barHollywood mogul Sam Goldwyn was famous for his one-liners like 'It rolls off my back like a duck.' But he wasn't the only one to produce hilarious lines that were never seen on screen and were often funnier than the script.

he always liked Goldwyn because "You always knew where you stood with him. Nowhere.

Some actresses were equally quick witted. When an actress said to Rosalind Russell: "I dread to think of life at 45." Russell replied: "Why? What happened then?"

And apparently when the producer Joe Pasternak kept pestering Marlene Dietrich to go to bed with him she kept him at bay with the words: "I will, when Hitler is dead." In 1945, Pasternak called Dietrich, said that Hitler was now dead, and he was ready to collect. Quick as a flash Marlene replied: Hitler is alive and living in Argentina."

Fund Censorship and the Hays Production Code, provides a fund of stories for the book. These were the days when kisses were timed, lovers - even married ones - had to have one foot on the floor during bed scenes and there was even a Bust Inspector to climb up a ladder and inspect cleavages from above. But even Will Hays, a Presbyterian minister after whom the code was named, wasn't safe from putting his foot in it occasionally. He once complained to a group of publicists about advertising being too sexy when there was a sudden commotion on the windowsill. Two pigeons had started to

"What's going on out there?" cried Hays.

"They're violating the Production Code," said a publicist drily.

In the days of the Production Code, the stars were expected to behave decorously offscreen as well as on. When the news broke that Ingrid Bergman was expecting an illegitimate child by Roberto Rossellini, gossip columnist Louella Parsons wailed on the radio: "Oh, Ingrid, Ingrid.

Whatever got into you?" Raymond Massey was once asked by a fellow actor if there was any leading lady Richard Burton hadn't managed to seduce. "Yes, Marie Dressler," said Massey. "But she's dead."
"Yes, I know."

Superstar Dustin Hoffman managed to pull a fast one on a colleague too. When he was playing the lead in Tootsie, in which he appeared disguised as a woman, he went into a studio cafe to check out how his make up was working. There, he ran into Jon Voight, his former costar from Midnight Cowboy. Hoffman said later: "I went up to him and told him how much I liked his work. We talked this Fairbanks makes Chaplin look like a undertaker. They're not in the same class. Fairbanks is far funnier than Chaplin."

Announced Charlie coldly: "I'm Chaplin." "I know you are," said the young man. "I'm Fairbanks."

Since declarer could expect a 4-2 trump break, he could not afford to extract all the trumps before he had set up a long spade. CINE ROUND-UP FROM BOMBAY

by Firoze Rangoonwalla

Special to the Arab Times

WITH the failure of many violent and action packed films recently, it seems that people are rather tired of the oft-repeated exciting fights and thrilling spectacles dished out regularly to bored audiences. Does this mean that Indian Cinema will revert once again to family dramas and tales of young love which were once such a favourite with audien-

Time alone will tell if this change will come about in a big way but there are some signs of it happening one is that some ecent films on those lines have brought in moderately good results, and secondly more films of a similar nature are on the release list in the immediate future or a little later in the year. It seems that producers and directors are slowly realising that what touches the heart is more important than the mere feeding of the senses. A few names are becoming prominent in this genre of films; film makers Kalpataru, Mohanji Prasad, K. Bapaiah, Krish-namurthy and son Ravi Shan-ker. And the artistes who specialise in it are Jaya Prada, Meenakshi Seshadri, Raakhee, Sudha Chandran, Rishi Kapoor, Raj Babbar and even Mithun and Govinda on rare occasions. For director Kal-pataru (it is his adopted screen name) the Ghar films have become quite a private goldmine and others have been quick to exploit. Almost every such film must have Ghar (home) in the title. Kalpataru nimself is doing a dozen such films.

Release

One family drama ready for release is Amat Teri Yahi Kahani made by Mohanji Prasad with Meenakshi, Raj Babbar, Raj Kiran and characper artistes Nirupa Roy, Sushma Seth, Shriram Lago, Aruna Irani and Kadar Khan. It is the old old, story of a cart-full of woes heaped on the poor heroine, to enable the women in the audience reach for the Kleenex. A film with same ordeal.

Talking about the film, Meenakshi said recently that she has big hopes from a few such family dramas. The next one is Mohan Prasad's Bade Ghar ki Beti directed by Kalpataru, in which Rishi is her hero. The cast also has Aruna Irani, Raj Kiran, Sushma Seth and Kadar Khan. Perhaps Meenakshi is banking on the past success of Maa Beti and the flop Swati in which she had a powerful character. A parallel family film being made is Bade Ghar ki Bahu also directed by Kalpataru but which has Rishi Farha, Swapna, Suresh Oberoi, Kadar Khan and Pran for a change.

Another such Meenakshi starrer directed by Kalpataru is Apna Ghar with Shashi and Rishi Kapoor, Raj Kiran, Aruna and Kadar Khan. With Java Prada, Jeetendra, Anita Raj, Shakti Kapoor, Aruna and Kadar Khan, the director is making Yeh Kaisa Sansar. A film completed and ready is An evil old landlord almost Prada, Raj Babbar, Mahdvi and Kadar Khan. And one recently started by him is Badi Bahen with Govinda, Farha, Dipika, Shakti Kapoor and Kadar Khan.

All this flurry of activity in domestic dramas was obviously spurred by the fair success of Pyar Ka Mandir, Ghar Ghar ki Kahani, Hamara Khandan and earlier Swarg Se

Some more family films on the way include Ghar Basake Dekho directed by J.K. Bihari who recently did Biwi Ho To Aisi. Then there are Ghar Parivar by Mohanji Prasad, Sawan Ka Mahina produced by Jaya Prada directed by Kalpataru and with herself and Rishi Kapoor in the cast. Bahurani is being made by Bharat Rangachary with Rekha, Gharana by K. Ravi Shankar with Meenakshi, Rishi, Govinda and Neelam, Mamta Ka Mandir by Surendra Mohan with Mithun and Jaya Prada. There is also Sagar Sangam directed by Dulal Guha with Shatru, Mithun, Raakhee, Padmini Kolhapure, Anita Raj etc., which was long delayed but is now being released. Activity

Sunder. The industry realised that audiences would welcome a violence-free family film, if it was well-knit and well-acted. The same is happening in the field of romantic dramas, and love affairs of young people opossed by elders or class feuds or old enmity. This has been triggered off by the huge success of Qayamat Se Qayamat Tak. Since this film ended in traged with the lovers dying like Porrec and Juliet or Leile like Romeo and Juliet or Laila and Majnu, the new films are also having weepy endings. The first to come up is Raman Kumar's Parbat Ke Us

Paar. Shot amidst the hills, the film has a young new pair. Abhinav Chaturvedi (the young "prince" of TV serials "Humlog" and "Buniyad") and Lubna Siddiqi (daughter of writer Javed Siddiqi). The film was completed long back but got sold recently after the splen-did showing of Qayamat Se. With an unusual backdrop and music by Khayyam, it may prove a moderate success. Another unsold romance is Jalal Agha's Goonj, shot in Goa with Juhi Chawla and Kumar

Gaurav. Other such films expected in near future are Boney Kapoor's Prem with his other brother Sanjay Kapoor making a hero's debut, Kanwal Sharma's De Do Mujhe Pyar with Rajiv Kapoor and Mandakini, B. Subash's Love Love Love with Aamir Khan and Juhi, Barjatya's Maine Pvar Kiya with Bhagyashri and Salman Khan, B. SPORTS ACTIVITIES

WOMEN NEED NOT LIMIT

QUESTION: I have a young granddaughter who is very interested in gymnastics. She is just entering her womanhood and I am afraid she will be injured by all the strenuous activity involved. Shouldn't women limit their sports activity? ANSWER: I think you're suggesting that sports and exercise are somehow bad for women. Nothing could be further from the truth. Exercise and sports participation can help anyone, male or female, maintain fitness and bring on an increased sense of

To talk about limiting women's athletic participation because of risk of injury is as silly as limiting men's participation because they need to wear athletic supporters.

There is still the lingering myth that exercise will hurt women or impair their femininity or reproductive health. Yet, women were once expected to run a household at a time when water had to be hauled from a well, laundry had to be physically scrubbed and wrungout and rugs had to be beaten clean. If a woman was lucky enough to have a servant to do this heavy work, that servant was usually a woman too. A fit woman is not more likely to be injured when participating in sports than a fit man. There are a few accommodations that women athletes must make to participate in sports, however. A large-breasted woman should wear a comfortable sports bra that will give her support for jumping or running. Women are more prone to knee and ankle injuries because of their wide pelvis, but proper stretching before exercise along with good shoes will reduce this risk.

There is no reason why a healthy pregnant woman should not continue to participate in sports or exercise. She should be careful of her changing centre of balance and of her lowered target heart rate, however.

As for your young granddaughter, she will gain much from her sports participation as she is watched closely by her coaches, who will assure that her activity is appropriate for her age and build. And you will enjoy every minute! QUESTION: My dad, who is 75, has a number of skin growths. Should he just leave them be, because of his advanced age, or should be seek some medical treatment?

ANSWER: Well, a dermatologist friend of mine believes it's never too late to treat skin growths. In older people, she thinks it's very important from an emotional standpoint. Some growths are badges of age, which she feels people don't always wear proudly. So, by all means, take your dad to a

The typical growths found in the elderly are small, discolored skin tags in which malignant transformation is rare and treatment is relatively simple. Removal is usually accomplished through scraping, freezing or acid treatments.

Liver spots, another type of skin growth, frequently go untreated and are waved off as a sign of aging. But there is no need for this, since they are simple to treat and respond to bleaching or liquid nitrogen peels.

The more serious growths are cancers and must be treated. Basal cell carcinoma, found most often on the head, neck or upper trunk is a slowly advancing cancer that is easy to remove through cryosurgery. Squamous cell carcinoma developing as a solitary nodule sometimes necessitates deeper procedures as does malignant melanoma.

Let your father be treated for these growths, either for his ego or his life. 1988 TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES, INC.

Red Sox trounce Orioles

BOSTON, Sept 7. (AP): Mike Greenwell, who figures in more railies than most players in baseball, also figures the Boston Red Sox are in the driver's seat in the American League East.

"I think we're the team to beat because we're in first place," Greenwell said last night after driving in three runs to lead Boson to a 6-1 victory over Bal-timore Orioks, giving the Red Sox a two-game lead over slumping Detroit.

The Tigers, who led the divi-sion from July 28 until Monday, when Boston claimed the top spot. Detroit's 7-3 loss last night to Toronto was its sixth straight. Elsewhere, it was Cleveland 1,

New York 0; Seattle 8, Minnesota 3, Texas 3, Oakland 1; and Kansas City 3, California 2. Surging Milwaukee, which trails Boston by 4-1/2 games, and Chicago were idle.

Blue Jays 7, Tigers 3 George Bell doubled to trigger

a four-run Toronto second inning as the streaking Blue Jays won their sixth straight game to temain 6-1/2 games behind Bos-

Detroit, 23-30 since the All-Star break, has lost 13 of its last 15 games. The Tigers had not endured a six-game losing streak since 1985 and hadn't dropped six consecutive games at home

Mariners 8, Twins 3 Harold Reynolds drove in three runs as the Seattle whipped

Mike Campbell, 6-8, allowed five hifs and two runs in 6 2-3 innings for the victory. Mike Schooler pitched the final 1 2-3 tiless innings for his 11th save, striking out three.

The loss left the defending World Series champions 9-1/2 games behind Oakland in the AL West and reduced the Athletics' magic number for clinching the division to 15.

Rangers 3, Athletics 1 Charlie Hough, struggling with a 3-8 record since July 4, scattered seven hits over 8 2-3 innings to lead Texas over the Browning and Deshaies, llege teammates while attending Lemoyne in New York, have met three times this season and Browning has won each time.

Kal Daniels hit two home runs to drive in four runs and Browning won his seventh game in his last eight decisions as Cincinnati beat Houston 10-3 at the Astrodome last night.

"I'm sorry Jimmy had to take the loss," Browning said. "Jimmy had a rough early going. and it was a situation where you can't get down by much."

Browning, 15-5, has a 13-2 record since June 1, and the Reds have won six of their last seven games to move within 6 1-2 games of first-place Los Angeles in the National League West. Elsewhere in the National League it was Atlanta 2, Los Angeles 1; Pittsburgh 3, New York 2; St Louis 1, Montreal 0; Philadelphia 3, Chicago 2; and San Diego 4, San Francisco 3.

LENDL OVERCOMES HLASEK

Connors and Agassi sail through

NEW YORK, Sept 7, (UPI): In a meeting of two of America's brightest young tennis talents. Andre Agassi handily defeated Michael Chang last night to gain the quarterfinals of the US Open against a man twice his age, Jimmy Connors.

Agassi, the 18-year-old fourth seed who lost in the opening round of his previous two Opens. disposed of the 16-year-old Chang, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2. Crushing

The crowd-pleasing teen thus set up an eagerly anticipated meeting against Connors, a fivetime Open champion who at 36 is twice his age. Connors first played in the Open in 1968, two years before Agassi was born, and the two hit balls against each other when Agassi was four.

Connors goes into the match following his biggest runaway at the championships in seven years, crushing Mexican Jorge Lozano, 6-1, 6-2, 6-0, in 85 minutes. This is the 15th time in 16 years Connors has reached the round of eight.

Completing the quarterfinal bracket are Ivan Lendl, in quest of a fourth successive Open crown, and unseeded Derrick Rostagno, who will face each with Woosnam, who led the order in 1987, slightly more than other for the first time. Lendl stumbled against a tough foe, Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland, before emerging with a 6-4, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4 victory. The top seed, whose serve wasn't as effec-tive as usual, has won 25 matches in a row at the Open since dropping the 1984 final to John. McEnroe.

Rostagno, who said later he was "happy more for my parents than anything," defeated Haitian Ronald Agenor, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3 to give the United States four quarterfinalists in the Open for the first time since 1983.

Lendl opened each set with a service break, and gave it back only in the second set. Lendl was up two breaks at 4-1 in that set before Hlasek, ranked 25th, broke back in the sixth, 10th and 12th games. Chang, whose ranking has risen to 48th, gained the initial break of the match in the third game, but Agassi got it back immediately and won the set with another break in the 12th game. Agassi jumped to a 3-0 lead in the second set, and after Chang drew even, he got the decisive break in the eighth game. Agassi broke twice more in the third set, in the first and seventh games,

Connors: to meet Agassi in quarterfinals concluding business in an hour allowed at the Open since beating

John Lloyd, 6-0 6-0 6-2 in 1981. Connors, who celebrated his 36th birthday last week, had his service broken only once, in the second game of the second set. and he broke Lozano eight times. Lozano fell and apparently trailing 2-0 in the second set. The ankle was sprayed and taped, and Lozano didn't appear to be hampered by it, putting up his best fight in that second set. Lozano, ranked 68th in the world, won merely 13 points in the first set and 14 in the third. "I thought I hit the ball as clean as I could hit it today." Connors said. "Not only did I hit the ball clean, I moved well and it

Errors Except for the second set, when he also was charged with half of his 20 unforced errors, Lendl didn't have his service broken, and he ended the 3 hour and 5 minute match with his seventh ace. "He rushed you a lot," Lendi said of Hlasek. "He's a very solid player. He doesn't miss many approaches or volleys. I felt better in the third and fourth sets and started hitting the ball cleaner. I also think his legs got a little heavier."

New record

DOVER, England, Sept 7, (AP): An 11-year-old English boy crawled ashore today at Shakespeare beach to set a new record as the youngest person to swim the English Channel, the Channel Swimming Association

Thomas Gregory, age 11 years 333 days, broke the record set in 1979 when Marcus Hooper made the crossing at age 12 years, 53 days. Both boys belonged to the Eltham Swimming and Training Club of London, 78 miles (126 kilometres) northwest of Dover.

MSen-Erune lightbostponed

NEW YORK, Sept 7, (Reuter): The bout between heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson and Briton Frank Bruno has been postponed due to injuries Tyson sustained in a road accident on Sunday, his manager said yesterday.

"The doctor strongly recom mends against it (the October 22 Bruno fight)," Tyson manager Bill Cayton said. "This is strictly a medical decision. Doctors at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital said the 22year-old boxer had blacked out for up to 30 minutes, sustained a concussion and is still suffering bouts of amnesia surrounding the road accident in upstate New York.

Scuffle.

Cayton said the Bruno bout, already put back by two weeks after Tyson injured his right hand in a scuffle with former heavyweight contender Mitch Green on August 23, would likely occur in December.

He said no new date had yet been arranged.

"He did sustain a concussion and had a fairly long duration of unconsciousness, about 20-30 minutes," Dr Caroline Brittontold a news conference.

"There is a rather significant duration of unconsciousness more than average for a head injury," she said. "He did not recall what happened when he first woke up. He does not recall the impact of the car," said Britton, a neurological specialist. "The fact that he has amnesia is a point of great concern for the doctors," Cayton said. "It shows that Mike is not normal.

'Originally he remembered nothing — not even getting into the car. Over the last 48 hours he has begun to get a recall. Just today he remembered getting into the car, but he does not remember the impact."

Cayton and Britton said Tyson expressed no remorse over the cancellation. Cayton said he would try for a December date at the 11,000 seat Wembley Arena, because the 55,000-seat Wembley stadium was unavailable after October

A newspaper reported today that Tyson's car crash was a suicide attempt but the heavyweight champion's manager rejected the article as ridiculous.

The front-page story in the New York Daily News said Tyson told his wife Robin Givens by telephone on Sunday that he was going to kill himself by crashing his car.

"On Sunday morning after completing his roadwork in the Catskills (mountains in upstate New York), Mike Tyson called his wife's apartment in Manhat-tan," it said. "The champion's mind was racing and tortured."

"I'm going to go out and kill myself," it said Tyson was repor-ted to have told Givens. "I'm going to crash my car."

The article said Tyson then hung up and headed out the door. "He climbed into Givens' silver BMW and pressed the gas pedal (accelerator) to the floor. He wore no seat belt," the article said.

"The car skipped across a lawn and down the driveway," it said. 'Tyson aimed the car into a

The article cited "interviews with those individuals with an intimate knowledge of Tyson's turmoil" for its account of the incident, in which Tyson blacked out and suffered a concussion and partial amnesia.

"I don't believe it," Cayton told Reuters in a telephone interview. "I don't think it has any credibility. I still don't know where they heard or came up with

Bookmakers refuse to take bets on Cup series

SAN DIEGO, Sept 7, (Reuter): Stars and Stripes skipper Dennis Conner is such a heavy favourite that bookmakers refused to take bets on him winning the first race of a lopsided America's Cup series off a sweltering San Diego

A fleet of up to 4,000 pleasure boats was gathering in San Diego New Zealand and the nippy US catamaran head for the starting

The national weather service predicted southwesterly winds of 12 to 18 knots during the race—a plus for Stars and Stripes. New Zealand, with its half acre of sail, runs best in light winds and choppy seas.

But New Zealand skipper David Barnes said he is hoping to pick up wind shifts early because of the expanse of his sails. Interest in the best-of-three series is limited. Banker Michael Fay, who has spent more than $10 million on the New Zealand challenge, has promised the real winner will be decided in the courts, claiming it is unfair to race a faster catamaran against a single-hulled vessel.

The boats were due to start racing at noon (1900 GMT), but San Diego, a relaxed naval town where tourists wander along harbour drive soaking up the sun and watching killer whales perform at Sea World, has failed to show much interest, outside the yachting community.

INDIAN SPORTS MINISTER SLAMS TCCB

England's India tour under threat

India came very close to saying today it would bar captain Gra-ham Gooch from the England cricket tour of the country due to start in December because of his South African links.

Sports Minister Margaret Alva, speaking shortly before the England touring team was announced, said England's Test and County Cricket Board (TCCB) knew perfectly well how strongly opposed India was to apartheid when it named Gooch captain.

If they want to announce the team in spite of that, it's up to them. It's obvious they don't want to play in India," she said.

Alva, speaking to reporters watching her accept an anti-Gooch petition signed by members of all India's parliamentary parties, emphasised no decision had been made on Gooch. issue

That would come when the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) formally presented the England squad to the government, which has to issue visas, she said.

But Alva's vehement comments left little doubt that England's 11-week tour would not go ahead unless the TCCB removed Gooch from the squad.

Half of its members have South African links. Seven other players named to the team -John Emburey, Allan Lamb, Kim Barnett, Rob Bailey, Tim Robinson, Graham Dilley and Phil Newport — have either played or coached in South incurred Indian wrath. Alva said that had she not been sports minister, she would have joined the more than 200 legis-lators who marched to her office to present their petition. Immediately after Gooch's appointment, Alva had refused all comment. Her blunt remarks today suggested the government had already decided to bar

Gooch.
"We have our differences in Parliament, but there are some issues on which we stand united. This is a national commitment," she said of the campaign against apartheid.

Asked if she would rather see the England tour cancelled than let Gooch play in India, Alva replied: "Absolutely."

Gooch is on a United Nations blacklist of sportsmen who have played or coached in South Africa for his participation in a rebel tour in 1982.

But the TCCB had argued he ought to be allowed to lead England on the tour because he had not been to South Africa since playing in the World Cup in India in 1987.

Anti-apartheid campaigners leading the drive against Gooch said his signature of a contract to play there meant he had forfeited his right to play in India.

India and England fought a similar battle in 1981. That was resolved when captain Geoff Boycott, who had played in South Africa, signed a statement condemning apartheid.

Boycott left the tour of India halfway through — then took part in the 1982 rebel tour, an action Indian cricket officials say left a feeling of betrayal in New and veteran off-spinner Eddie Hemmings were recalled to the team today.

The choice of Hemmings, who will be 40 during the 11-week tour due to start on December 6, was the biggest surprise sprung by the selectors.

He has not played a Test this summer, he has taken just 16 wickets at an average of 54.75 in his eight Tests and his international career was widely regarded as over.

He last played for England on the tour of New Zealand earlier this year, having taken a leading role in England's World Cup campaign last October.

Gower, who led England on their last tour of India in 1984-85, was dropped for the last two Tests against West Indies. His record stands at 100 Tests and 7,000 runs.

A new face - the 35th player to be selected by England since May - is reserve wicketkeeper Steven Rhodes.
